THE YELLOW LEAF.

Round flew the bowl, the laugh rose high,

Though August's moon was in her wane,

High rose the laugh, the transport's swell,

The mirth was hush'd, the songster's lays

Broke short, and back in solemn gaze

Hung on the leuf, nor dared to raise

One tim'rous lay.

Each fear'd upon his neighbor's face

As the pale emblem spoke the race

It seem'd some Fairy from the skies

Of summer run

Had seen our idle transport rise,

And, to unmask life's treacheries,

The warning sent,

To tell us that our life might know

An autumn too-

That joys but coming sorrow speak

Blithe roses paint.

Yes, in that hour, and on that day,

Reflection stole my smiles away,

And, like him weeping to survey

His myriad lands.

As calms precede the tempest bleak,

That death's most certain victim's cheek

To tell us that the scene might glow,

But soon should fade in cheerless snow,

His own sad thoughts pourtray'd to trace,

near friend, at evening's pensive hour,

They give the mind a little heaven,

When summer's richest canopy,

So soft the air, so gay the plain,

When sudden, potent as a spell!

Detached by no rude zephyr, feil

One yellow leaf!

The budded boughs of emerald dye,

Was all our shade.

We said that summer's joyous reign

Would never cease.

For love its vigil now shall be,

Then dearest friend do not delay-

TIME.

I saw him hastening on his way, And marked his lightning flight, Where'er he mov'd there stern decay spread its destructive blight. Rapid the gloomy phantom hied, Envelop'd in the storm-His eyes shone out in sullen pride,

I saw him grasp the warrior's wreath, Woo in the gory fray; The laurels withering, sunk in death, Their beauty fled away; That wreath was stained with bloody dew, Unhallowed was its bloom; It met the phantom's chilling view,

I saw him pass by beauty's bower, And listen to her lay; Around the spot was many a flower, Blooming in summer day. With icy heart, the spectre came, Her levely form compress'd:

His fell sires o'er nature passed, And low she droop'd her head, Her blassoms withered in the blast,

MORAL AND RELIGIOUS.

TOR THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

Hope springs eternal in the human breast, Man never is, but always to be blest .- Pore.

In the morning of life, when the youth-ful passions burst as it were, the thraldom which had confined them, and the mind begins to assume those feelings, and treasure up those sentiments, which is the lot of riper years to confirm, then it becomes necessary for the coercive hand of experience, to use that just prerogative, which reason, and the observation of years always impart. If this authority were duly exercised, whilst the mind is yet flexible to the admonitions of age, how exempt would our country be from those many calamities, which ignorance, and idleness, the parents of turbulence and disorder always occasion. Then might we expect to see genius, aloof from those passions which corrode, and finally destroy the fairest endowments of nature. Then might we glory in having reached the goal of our republie, which is the dissemination of virtuous principles, and the happiness of every individual. As the acorn contains within it brittle fabric, the rudiments of the majestic oak, so man possessing a mind clothed with the vestures of virtue, contains within him that which promotes the happiness of a nation. And as the vegetable kingdom requires the heat of the majestic sun, to expand and display her beauties, so a virtuous man calls for the warmth of the congenial friend, to participate, and to disseminate happiness.

THE WORLD.

What is the world, even to those who ove it, who are intoxicated with its pleasures, and who cannot live without it? The no one lives for himself alone, and where if we strive to be happy, we must kiss its fetters and love its bondage. The world! it is a daily revolution of events, which create,

in succession, in the mind of its partizans, and grievous chagrins. The world! it is a place of malediction, where pleasures themselves carry with them their troubles and afflictions. In the world there is no-fluent-nor friendships the most sincere-nor characters the most exalted-nor favours the most enviable. Men pass all their lives in agitations, projects and schemes always ready to deceive, or trying tive to profit by the retirement, disgrace or death of their competitors; always occupied with their fears or their hopes; always discontented with the present, and anxious about the future; never tranquil, further from it. Vanity, ambition, vengeance, luxury, avarice-these are the virtues which the world knows and esteems.-

In the world, integrity passes for simplicity, duplicity and dissimulation are meritorious. Interest the most vile, arms brother against brother-and breaks all the ties of blood and friendship: and it is this base motive which produces our hatreds and attachments! The wants and misfortunes of a neighbour find only indifference and insensibility, when we can neglect him without loss, or cannot be recompensed for our assistance. If we could look into ties, and inquietudes-if we could pierce the outward appearance which offers to our eyes only joy, pleasure, pomp and mag-nificence; how different should we find it

LEVEE OF THE GRACES. FROM THE FRENCH OF MASSILON.

Notwithstanding the secretaries had regularly notified the members of the meetings to be held on the evenings of every Wednesday, the number attending was world! it is a perpetual servitude, where never sufficient to form a quorum. The splendour of the entertainments brought forward by the Circus managers, supported by the talent and beauty of the female performers, had proved so powerfully attracthe most violent passions, bitter hatreds, odious perplexities, devoteing jealousies, considerable numbers, and the merits and demerits of the persons composing the corps, were alone the topics of conversation, and superceded, for the time, the afthing lasting; nor fortunes the most affairs of the Levee. And indeed, our worthy chairman, than whom no one has the interest of the society more entirely at heart, may be found every evening of perto avoid deception; always eager and acformance in the right hand stage box, his eye brows elevated, his snuff box open, his hat knowingly awry, with every other mark of a profound critic. On Wednesday evening last, the secredoing every thing for repose and removing taries as usual notified the members of the stated meeting, but finding no attenders discovered our president, but also Mrs. Modish, Miss Trollop, our Vices, with some half dozen other members. The correctness of Mrs. T's representation was canvassed with critical strictness, and her classical adaptation of dress was voted to be in harmony with the character. After the entertainments were over, the members in two different parts of the world-if we could enter into the secret detail of anxie- to the hall, where the meeting being properly organized, Miss Trollop rose "to anathematize the rude and insulting behaviour of the gentlemen composing the society; who not only when in meeting asfrom what it appears! Benjamin Brainless, Esq. recriminated, stating "he had intended at a future meeting to have filed an indictment for the really astonished at Miss Trollop's accusation, as he believed nothing short of a perfect curiosity would elicit such behaviour from the men-But when a "rara avis" caught our view, every person of research examined it to establish its genera." Here Mr. Brainless was called to order by the chairman; he then concluded by saying, " in his opinion, were the aggregate of politeness in the two sexes ascertained, the balance would preponderate heavily in favour of the men."-The levee clock now ror and despair-Suddenly a stream of tolling twelve, the meeting adjourned.

A STORY OF LAKE ERIE.

An Indian woman, and her child who was about five years old, were travelling along the beach to a camp a few miles distant. The boy observed some wild grapes forests which crowned their summits and growing upon the top of the bank and expressed such a desire to obtain them, that only. his mother, seeing a ravine at a little distance, by which she thought she could gain the edge of the precipice, resolved to gratify him. Having desired him to remain For the Conduct of Women-By the late Countess where he was, she ascended the steep and was allured much farther into the woods than she at first intended. In the mean time the wind began to blow vehemently, but the boy wandered carelessly along the beach, seeking for shells till the rapid rise of the water rendered it impossible for him to return to the spot where he had been left by his mother. He immediately began to cry aloud, and she being on her return, heard him, but instead of descending the dying had now ceased, for every thing hu- cavine, hastened to the edge of the precipice, from the bottom of which the noise seemed to proceed. On looking down she beheld her son struggling with the waves The heavily laden heavens shook off the and vainly endeavoring to climb up the mantle of clouds which had enveloped bank, which was fifty feet perpendicular height, and very slippery. There being no possibility of rendering him assistance, ed on the bed of the river, and where the down the steep, when she saw him catch voice of singing, and the buoyant step of hold of a tree that had fallen into the lake, youth had been heard, the stillness of death and mount one of its most projecting branches. He sat astride upon this, almost beyond the reach of the surges, while she continued watching him in an agony of grief, hesitating whether she should endeavour to find her way to camp, and procure assistance, or remain near her boy. However, evening was about to close, and as she could not proceed through the woods in the dark, she resolved at least to wait until the moon rose. She sat on the top of the precipice a whole hour, and, during that time, occasionally ascertained that her son was alive, by hearing his cries amidst the roaring of the waves; but when the moon appeared he was not to be seen. -She now felt convinced that he was drowned, and giving way to otter despair, threw herself on the turf. Presently she heard a feeble voice cry, (in Indian) " Mative, as to draw our members there in very ma, I'm here, come and help me." She started up, and saw her boy scrambling up the edge of the bank, she sprang forward Singular effects of Beauty on a Foung Man .- Bishop Dupoy invited one day to dinner, two Clergymen and two ladies; he remarked that during the whole of the repast, the youngest of the two clergymen had his eyes steadily fixed on one of the ladies, who was very handsome. The Bishop, after dinner, when the ladies had retired, asked him what he thought of the beauty he had been looking at-The clergyman answered "My lord, in looking at the lady, but themselves, adjourned to the circus, I was reflecting that her beautiful forehead and upon entering the said box, not only will one day be covered with wrinkles; that the coral of her lips will pass to her eyes, the vivacity of which will be extinguished; that the ivory of her teeth will change to ebony; that to the roses and lilies of her complexion, the withered appearance of care will succeed; that her fine soft skin will become a dry parchment; that her agreeable smiles will be converted into grimaces; and at length she will become the antidote of Love."-" I never should the stage box forming a quorum, repaired have supposed," said the Bishop, "that the sight of a fine woman would have inspired a young man with such profound medita-

Favorites of George IV .- The longest ersonal favorite whom the new King has ever kept is Du PACQUET, his dresser and chief valet. He is a Frenchman of the old school, and enjoys the unbounded confidence of his royal master. He is his caterer of small news, and of the chit-chat out of doors, and within the purlieus of the palace. At the same time it is just to add. that he has never been charged with abusing a station, which in courts has often been the means of promoting dangerous intrigues.

The next domestic favourite is Wilmet. the chief cook, also a Franchman, but familiarly called Jack Hammond (why, I know not;) but, in a luxurious court, a chief cook is a man who must be as often consulted as a minister of state.

Another royal favourite, and perhaps more harmless, is Nap the poodle dog, who was taken with Napoleon's carriage, and was for many years the intelligent travelling companion of that great man. Nap now travels with his old master's more fortunate rival, to whom he is not less faithful, and whom he amuses by his numerous tricks and uncommon sagacity. It might bave been hoped that the liberal treatment of the dog would have been extended to his illustrious master, who by well authenticated accounts, is not only chained to a rock, but like Prometheus, is constantly tortured by a vulture.

DEAN SWIFT .- George Faulkner, the Dublin printer, once called on Dean Swift on his return from London, dressed in a rich coat of silk brocade and gold lace. and seeming not a little proud of the adorning of his person, the Dean determined to humble him. When be entered the room, and saluted the Dean with all the respectful familiarity of an old acquaintance, the Dean affected not to know him; in vain did he declare himselfas George Faulkner, the Dublin printer: the Deut declared him an impostor and at last abruptly bade him begone. Faulkner, perceiving the error he had committed, instantly retired home, and resuming his usual dress, again went to the Dean, when he was very cordially received. " Ah, George," said he, " I am so glad to see you, for here has been iar, a scoundrel, a blackguard, a rascal, a an impudent coxcomb, bedizened in silks vagabond, a worthless cur-In short, you and gold lace, who wanted to pass himself off for you; but I soon sent the fellow about by suspicions, by interests, by caprices; ill fortune threw in their way"—she also unions the most endearing dissolved by in

Execution of the Rochelle Conspirators

Paris, Sept. 22 .- About 11 o'clock the walls o the different public buildings were covered with the "Arrat de la Cour Royalx de Paris," announc ing the condemnation of Bories, Pomier, Goubin, and Raoulx, four sub-officers, (sergeants and sergeant-majors) of the 45th regiment of the line, for conspiracy, treason, &c. almost at the same moment, and simultaneously through the entire of the city of Paris, the same Arret, adding "that it would be carried into execution on that day at the Place de Greve," was in the hands of the hawkers, who cried it about the streets precisely as "last speeches" are announced in London. Up to 2 o'clock half a dozen mounted gendarmes were the only military on duty in the Place de Grere: but strong detachments of the same description of force, horse and font, were posted at all the commanding points in that quarter. In the Place du Chatelet particularly, a numerous body was drawn up. I proceeded towards the Conciergerie. The people were crowding towards the place of execution. No symptoms of sympain executing all orders, to obtain a liberal share thy for the miserables struck my eye. In a cafe, within twenty yards of the guillotine, officers were playing at billiards, the shops were open—the pas-sengers laughing—enjoying themselves—showmen were exhibiting—and low gaming going on every where I passed. A great crowd had assembled round the prison of the Conciergerie, to which the condemned had been removed, between the hours of five and six o'clock in the morning, under a guard of fifty mounted gendarmes. On their reaching that, their last human living abode, they were placed in a chamber very different from the condemned cells attached to English gaols .-It is well furnished and contains a clock that strikes the quarters, which consequently intimates incessantly to the unhappy sojourners in that melancholy apartment, that their moments, already numbered, are fast expiring; but neither that circumstance, nor the presence and unwearied exertions and exhortations of the clergymen by whom they were attended, produced any effect upon the con demned men. They are said to have been all of good families; more particularly Bories and Raoulx. In the course of the morning, one of the Judges of the Criminal Court of Paris had an interview with them, which lasted nearly two hours ; doubtless he endeavoured to procure from them some information respecting the plot for which they were to suffer, or that to favor their escape from the Bicetre, which had been detected. No one believes that they gave the slightest information respecting either, although the journals may probably assert the contrary. From the moment of their conviction, up to that of their quitting the Conciergerie for the place of execution, they manifested constantly the same levity, or rather volatility, accompanied by allusions to their unhappy fate. About 2 o'clock five hundred soldiers o different regiments marched into the place, preceded by drums and formed a square. Numbers of mounted gendarmes issued from under the porch of the Hotel du Ville (or Mansion house,) which is in the centre of the eastern side of the place. The only persons allowed to remain near the guillotine, except the executioner and his assistants, were the people who crowded the footway by the front of it; on the edge of which, and within two yards of the scaffold, sat a number of women, although made aware that they would be deluged with the blood of the condemned at the moment of execution! About half past 2 o'clock the two waggons left the Place de Greve for the Conciergerie, under an escort of gendarmerie.— The executioner (a tall, elderly, decent looking man, wearing a fashionable blue silk handkerchief on his neck, and a black straw hat) followed leaving behind him a small, rough, white dog, called a barbe, who took his post on the scaffold at the top of the ladder. The animal appeared as watchful as those dogs you see on waggons in London. The crowd continued incessantly to increase-new bodies of the gendarmerie traversed the palace .-About 50 of the gendarmes d'elite finally marched in, and remained stationed near the scaffold. The usual amusements of a mob went on. Four o'clock at length arrived, and there being no appearance of the sad cavalcade, the hopes and doubts of the spectator were excited. This continued until within five minutes of five o'clock, when a hackneycoach, attended by some gendarmes, drove rapid ly across the place, stopped at a tavern exactly opposite to me, and a person dressed in some sort like a clergyman descended from it, and entered the tavern. "Ah! there is no hope!" said a French gentleman near me; " that is a Greffier of the Court, or Rapporteur, whose office is to see the sentence executed, and to make a report of it (proces verbal.) In another quarter of an hour you will see the miscrables themselves" Five o'clock struck and yet they had not arrived. At that moment the coup d'ail was strikingly awful, The whole area of the Place de Greve, and as much of the Quai de Greve as I could see, were filled by a dense crowd, now incapable of increase. So irresistible was the force produced by the slightest motion, that the soldiers were momentarily compelled to give way, and the hollow-square became gradually contracted. The windows and tops of all the houses within view-the quays oppositethe Points (Bridges) d'Elite and de Marie, even the towers of the church of Notre Dame, in the distance, were crowded to overflow. A great deal of amosement was just then excited by a sweep, who kept his position on a shed against all the efforts of the owner and some gendarmes.-A movement amongst those who had a view of

struck a quarter past five, the first gendarmes forming the escort of the condemned, entered the Place de Greve; a universal cry of " Hats off," took place-all heads were uncovered. The two waggons in succession appeared; in the first was the executioner, the prisoners Bories, Goubin, and two elergymen; in the second was Raoulx and Pomler, each also attended by a clergyman. The prisoners sat on boards placed across in the wag. gons, and beside each a priest with a crucifix in his hand, who seemed apparently most anxious to impress their unhappy charge with some sense of religion, but most certainly without a particle of success. During the whole line of march, from the Conciergerie to the Place de Greve, the prisoners had never attended to the priests for an instant. They looked around them incessantly, acknowledged acquaintances in the crowd, made loud remarks to each other; and Bories and Goubin repeatedly addressed the people, notwithstanding the efforts of the priests and gandarmes to restrain them. Arrived at the scaffold, the same spirit continued to animate them up to their last breath. Bories sat next to the horses in the first waggon, having been first brought out of the Conciergerie. He alone wore a regimental jacket, or any thing militaire. In common with his unforthe collars of their shirts were loose and open.-The waggons advanced at a smart walk: the priests straining every nerve—it was useless—they halted at the foot of the scaffold. I now perceived a gentleman on foot in a brown surtout, near them. The instant the waggon reached the scaffold, the executioner descended, went up to the guillotine, and arranged a cord. All the prisoners rose, threw a hasty glance round them, made some remarks loudly to each other, and prepared in a hurried manner to quit the waggons. I then perceived that their hands were tied behind their backs. The contessor of Bories appeared to inform him that it was his unfortunate companion who was to have the fatal precedence,

All were then permitted to descend. The gentleman in the brown coat now advanced to Goubin and Bories. He was connected with the Ministry of Justice. He made a last appeal to the con-demned. The priests redoubled their entreaties and exertions; they were lost; for those unfortu nate young men appeared to have no other feeling than that they were brought there to suffer, and that to have it over suddenly and expeditiously was the only thing desirable. Goubin addressed his companions, and was either replied to, or addressed in the same tone, by Raoulx, who stood furthest from him; for the clergyman in attendance upon him appeared shocked, and remonstrated with him. Raoulx turned his back, and walked about with an air of contemptuous and constrained submission. They continued to talk loudly, always turning away with impatience from the clergyman, who, with the gentleman already mentioned, seemed at length to express despair-A little bustle occurred-Goubin flew up the steps of the scaffold-he was instantly seized by the executioner and his assistants-bound to the plank-shouted " Vive la Liberte"-he was thrown down-I shut my eyes, closed my ears, but a gen eral groan from 150,000 people announced that the bold and daring Goubin bad ceased to live .-The cool, intrepid, Raoulx enchanged a significant smile with Bories, a mixed expression of sympathy and congratulation, to which their fine dark eyes gave peculiar force. Pomier ascended next, with a cheerfulness, although not so animated as Goubin; afterwards Raoulx, whose handsome face can never be forgotten by any one who has seen him. He wore verry long whiskers, and had all the appearance of esprit, and was deemed a most intelligent and respectable young man; he was the only one who seemed to possess sang froid the others looked and acted as if nervously excit. ed. Finally, the brave mercural Bories ascended. I saw his last look of apparent triumph: he was seized like the others by the executioner. I ran into an inner apartment; a young Frenchman shrieked, "Oh Bories, Bories;" rushed through the room and fell lifeless in the passage-it was

From the moment of the arrival of the cavalcade at the entrance to the Palace de Greve, seven minutes had only elapsed, and Bories, Goubin, Raoulx, and Pomier, were dead. The priests were departing-the croud separating-the women, unmoved to tears, were making observations on the bloody scene—the executioner and his men were busied in disposing of the mangled bodies, and in dismantling the guillotine-water was pour ed profusely on the blood-stained pavement, the soldiers prepared to march: in short, at 35 min. utes past 5 o'clock, the troops defiled, with drums beating; and few remained near the scaffold, save the gendarmes.

Sagacious Provision in the New Mar riage Act .- By this profound measure it is enacted, that if both the parties be under age, the one who is of age shall swear that he or she believes they are both of age Here's "Collective Wisdom" with a vengeance!-We know of but one instance at all equal to it; which is in an act passed during the gentle reign of the first Charles, in which the punishment awarded to a certain offence (smuggling, we believe) is a public whipping and a fine; "half of which," says the act alluded to, "shall go to the King, and half to the informer!"-In the celebrated Trial-by-Battle case, a few years ago, Lord Ellenborough said, that "without stopping to enquire whether the Law, were equitable or not, if it were the law, he must put it into execution;" we should like to see the above case, under the Smuggling act brought forward!

The following anecdote is given by an eye-wit ness of the events of the 7th July at Madrid. It reminds one of the arrest of Andre. In the disersion of one of the battalions of the insurgen Guards, Mon, their commandant, was met and taken prisoner by a peasant. He offered six ounces of gold and his gold repeater, to let him escape but the peasant, although he had scarcely a shoe to his foot, rejected the offer with scorn. Mon begged of him to spare his life. "I will not kill you," replied the peasant, "but with the sword of the law." He conducted him to the Artillery quar-

GREAT BRITAIN .- Since the death of the Marquis of Londonderry, says the London Traveller, a material objection has been removed to the acknowledgment of South American independence. This measure, to which his Ledship was particularly averse, is said to be viewed in a more favorable light by his successor. Should it be carried into effect, it is understood that a liquidation at par of all the claims of British subjects upon the Colombian government will take place as a preliminary, including the debts contracted on their account by Sir Gregor Macgregor.

Hudrophobia .- A dog was killed last week in Baltimore, supposed to be mad having bitten four children, and excited serious alarm in the neighborhood.

Three of the four culprits, who escaped last summer from Hartford jail, have been retaken -The fourth, called Luther Smith, is said to be an arch rogue, and hids fair to become a second New man in prison breaking. He is described to be a tall, straight, well-looking man, of about 28 years remarkably athletic, and nimble-footed; a great reader, when in custody, of religious books, and generally succeeds in exciting the sympathy of all who approach him. In almost every species of crime he is an adept, but is supposed to be most familiar with passing counterfeit money, horsethieving and store-breaking.

Winter in Canada, has commenced its reign in apparent earnest, with a snow storm at Montreal on the 28th ult. and ice t Quebec thick enough for skating.

Instructions have been given for the members of the family to repair to that city without delay.

Daring Outrage.—On the 2d inst. a villain entered the house of Mr. B. Cattonet, of Savannah, by he scuttle communicating with the garret, and placed himself in the chamber of two young ladies daughters of Mr. C. Their surprise and alarm may be judged of, when on entering the room, prepa ratory to retiring to rest, they perceived the fee and part of the legs of a man beneath the door of a ciothes press, in which he had hastily taken shelter. The young ladies immediately shrieked for assistance, and attempted to fly, when the villain rushed from his hiding place, and by blows seveal times repeated, knocked them both down upor he landing place of the stairs, which, with the wall, was sprinkled with blood. He then made his escape. His object it is supposed was to rob e house.

The Charleston Patriot says, " Pensacoa is almost completely deserted, on account of the dreadful mortality by the yellow fever. A letter says, that out of a f responsible for the above sum, to be population of 1400 souls, but 400 remain id in compliance with the above terms. —the rest having either died or fled from the place. But one American family was there. All the authorities had died or deserted. They had no Governor nor Council, no police, nor post-office."

> Among the deaths at New Orleans, from the 7th to the 14th ult. the following are recorded:-Mr. D. Campbell, of N. Jersey; Miss Bennet, E. Horton, Rebecca Brob, S. Bradley, of Pennsylvania; and Caroline Bennet of Delaware. From the 7th to the 15th, one hundred and ninety-nine deaths occured.

Female Intrepidity.- The Salem (Mas.) paper, in giving an account of a fire at Hamilton, notices the following instance of intrepidity in a female. The fire was discovered about four o'clock in the morning. The house was already enveloped in ed, with the destruction of her crew, the ret Lummus, a widow, with 5 children, the eldest on a sick bed. Mrs. L. with great fortitude, after having conveyed her sick daughter to a building near by, and extricated her other children from the flames, returned, and at the risk of her life, directed by the cries of a child, proceeded into one of the chambers and brought out a child of a captain Dodge, from the midst of the flames. The whole of the two families, consisting of captain Dodge, his wife, and 2 children, Mrs. Lummus and 5 children, escaped naked and destitute,-The building was consumed with all its contents, except a few articles of furniture belonging to captain Dodge.

Three prisoners, Thomas Ladd, convicted of passing counterfeit money, and sentenced to be imprisoned for life, and George W. Gordon and Josiah Gregory convicted of larceny, escaped from the gaol in Banger, on Tuesday night last .-Bost. Daily. Adv.

SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION .-- A large Fatal Accident .- On Saturday afternoon, mass of Virginia Coal in the United States Navy Yard at Brooklyn, for the use of the blacksmith's shops, took fire on Saturday afternoon, and excited much alarm for the safety of the timber sheds near it, and the new frigate on the stocks. It become necessary to cut away some of the scaffolds, and with the aid of the engine companies of Breoklyn, the fire was soon extinguished, and the coal removed to another place. The coal was small, and remarkably sulphureous .- N. F. Ev. Post.

A motion has been brought forward in the Legislature of the State of New-Jersey, to establish Tread-Mills in the different prisons of that state.

COMMUNICATION.

JEMIMA WILKINSON -This formerly centric and celebrated preacheress, has paid that debt, against which a Court of Insolvency can have no jurisdiction. It was fondly anticipated that the memoirs this lady's life, would ere this, have been given to the public, as many interesting facts are connected with her ministration and deportment-a development of circumstances attributed to her powerful influence in society, would have a tendency to check religious superstitious bigotry. In Phila-delphia she was well known, for successful operations, and on that account, a history of her tour through mortality would prove acceptable to THOUSANDS.

COMMUNICATION,

Messrs Editors-As any increase to the number of rational amusements cannot fail to gratify the enlightened population of which our city is composed, I beg leave to add my testimony, to that of many others, who were so amply satisfied with the performances at the 'City Theatre,' on Thursday evening last. The tragedy of George Barnwell, (which has long sustained so much reputation on both sides of the Atlantic) was personated throughout with a degree of propriety which would not have taken from the merit of any Theatre. There are few admirers of the drama, who have not literally 'held their sides,' at the representation of High Life below Stairs-and to use a vulgar but emphatic expression, the audience, on Thursday evening, were 'ready to burst' with laughter, so admirably did each one play his part. It would be invidious to make distinctions—the Lovel of Mr. Ailen was above praise-Mr. Mestayer was quite at home; and was I not arrested by the at ractions of Miss French, in Lady Charlotte, I should make a general commendation of the whole corps. In short, the decorum which has reigned throughout this 'renovated establishment,' since the management of Mr Allen, encourages a hope performances this evening. G.I.F.

DRAMATIC SUMMARY.

Mr. Strickland, the architect of the New Thetre, on Thursday delivered the keys of the building to the trustees; having completed his contract twen y days before the stipulated period expired.

Mr. Caldwell, Manager of the Theatres of Petersburg and New Orleans, and his company of Comedians, arrived at Norfolk on the 50th ult. in the Steam Boat Richmond. They commenced their operations on the evening of the 4th inst.

Mr. Mathews performed Falstaff in the first part of Henry IV. last evening, in N. York, being the last night but two of his engagement.

Mr. Watkinson, from the Drury Lane any alterations that the purchaser may deem ad-Theatre, has appeared in New-York, in Sir Abel Handy, and Brummagem, and was handsomely received. His line, says the Advocate, is that of a comic old man, one of no inconsiderable difficulty, and his face and figure admirably adapted for such characters. Mr. Foot played Sir Philip Blandford, and is much applauded.

Mr. and Mrs. Duff are in Baltimore, but we have not understood that they had made any engagement.

Boston, Nov. 12 .- Mr. Cooper took his acter of Damon. The Box Tickets were all taken soon after the Office opened, and many could not procure places. In con-dwelling, No. 160 Union street. His Ball and Co. sequence of the disappointment experienced by many gentlemen, not being able to procure places for Damon and Pythias last evening, the managers have prevailed on Mr. Cooper to extend his engagement for three nights more, viz : Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next.

Beaumont and Fletcher .- Dryden tells us, that Beaumont and Fletcher's plays, in his time, were the most pleasant and frequent entertainments, two of them being acted through the year, for one of Shakespear's or Johnson's; and the reason he assigns is, because there is a certain gaiety in their comedies, and a pathos in their more serious plays which suit generally with all men's humour. The case, however, is now reversed, for Beaumont and Fletcher's are not acted above once for fifty times that the plays of Shakespear are represented.

MANES BULL.-The committee for improving a road in the Isle of Man, after due deliberation, had the following notice stuck up:-" Whereas the bridge of Kirk ! built, all persons going that way to Peel must take the other road."

An English schoolmaster who has written a grammar, says that a repeating watch is of the feminine gender.

The Retort Courteous .- A member of one of the learned professions was driving his dennet along the road at Toothing, in Surrey, England, when he overtook a pedlar with his pack and inquired what he had to sell. The man produced among other the money, and then said, "You have, I hesitatingly. "I should like to see it."-After some further delay, it was produced. "My good fellow, all's right, I see. Now. as I do not want these things, you may have them again for three pence." The bargain was struck, but how surprised was the querist to find a summons to attend the County Magistracy sitting at Croydon. The gentleman was convicted in the full penalty, for selling goods on the King's highway without a hawker's license. He is a lawyer.

It was told Jekyl, that one of his friends, a brewer, had been drowned in his own vat-" Ah!" he exclaimed, " floating on his watery bier."

OLDRIDGE'S BALM OF COLUMBIA.

OLDRIDGE begs leave to inform the inhabi-• tants of the United States and elsewhere, that he has discovered, by the power of chemistry, the grand desideratum of preventing the hair from falling off, in the short space of FORTY-EIGHT HOURS after the first application.

This Balm will also restore hair on bald places, and speedily cure the dandruff. He now considers it altogether useless to continue to give signatures, its utility being universally known in Phi ladelphia, and hundreds are at this time receiving their hair again. J. O. begs leave to return thanks to the generous Americans, for the liberal encouragement bestowed upon his capillary restorative since its first discovery, and hopes to merit a continuation of their favours. Prepared and sold at at one dollar per bottle, and half bottle 50 cents, at No. 554 South Front street, and at No. 11 North Pourth street, Philadelphia, by JOHN OLDRIDGE.

T Something like Shakspeare. SCENE—Pavement in front of Gibbs's Fortunate Lottery Office, No. 4½, south Third Street, with a full and distinct view of Lottery Schemes, Capital Prizes, invitations to purchase tickets, &c. A number of persons (all in want of money) engaged in reading them-one comes forward and addresses the others as follows:

To buy or not to buy-that is the question?-Whether 'tis better, in the mind, to suffer The stings and arrows of outrageous fortune, Or buy a ticket at Gibbs's Lucky Office!-And thus adventuring end them-to risk-to gain: No more:—and, by a gain, to say we end The heart ache; and the thousand natural shocks That want is heir to-'tis a consummation Devoutly to be wished-to risk,-to gain : To gain—perchance $7500,—Av, there's the hope, For in that gain of CASH what joys may come, When we have counted off this handsome prize, Must make us blest! Why do we pause? Let come what may-we can but loose the price-

The price the ticket cost us. Let's in at once and For who would bear the duns of each day's date, The magistrate's writ, the sherift's shoulder tap, The dread of prison bounds—the laws' delay, The insolence of bailiffs, and the pangs That the poor debtor of the unfeeling takes,-When he himself might his quietus make,

With a prize ticket-What! no answer to this question, then 'tis plain, Tis evident, all wish to avoid the pain, So, in at once—Gentlemen please clear the way, Gibbs give us a ticket each—here, here's the pay, And if we dont draw prizes-why it's no matter-We'll try in next class, and perhaps do better-thank you, (says Gibbs) it's a noble resolution, And loose or gain you help the institution.

There's Tickets gentlemen, and may fortune 'tend them,

If your friends have not bought yet—thank ye to send 'em, Good day gen'men-brem'men: this augurs well, No danger now, but what your Tickets sell.

AUTHORITIES.

A LL Authorities prove that the teeth can be saved—but never unless mankind are informed. In this city it has been said that public information from the pen of the Dentist is unfashionable-alas the poor teeth.

All history proves that man will bestate, but hat woman was never known to refuse her generous aid when the public welfare was in danger. Ye fair be cautious, keep this great truth in view, Public information is a friend to you.

Williams performs every operation which will save the teeth without giving pain, extracting a touth only excepted. The teeth are destroyed by pressure-What man can give another cause? England gives none-and it said that our most eminent dentists approve the English writers on the teeth.

The toeth require to be kept clean.

For one dollar Williams performs every operation requisite; and fixes teeth in the mouth on moderate terms.
